“Women with wealth usually want to ensure their financial independence is protected with safe investments and with income protected from inflation. Some of my clients want to be kept fully involved in all decisions, whilst others just want to know what they have, at any point in time. Every client is different and the service we provide to each client matches this and each portfolio is managed separately. We ensure that every client can easily reach the person managing their investments.”

“ Many of my clients are women - and security is the first concern. I appreciate the time they always take to explain their situation. My clients are all different but generally they tend to invest for the long term, are keen not to put all their eggs in one basket, and knowingly feel that anything could happen. We spend time together to choose investments and put a portfolio in place for long term steady growth, but with flexibility for changing circumstances and opportunities for safe and better returns.”

“I enjoy helping women with sudden wealth, which may follow a personal disruption in their lives. I share my experience in family wealth issues - such as how much and when to give to the young, and how best to instil financial responsibility. I can also provide relevant connections in professional and business circles and also in the Arts, in education, in charities and in areas of public policy – which may be helpful to our clients in getting on with their lives.”
